

What do we do?

Clinical service

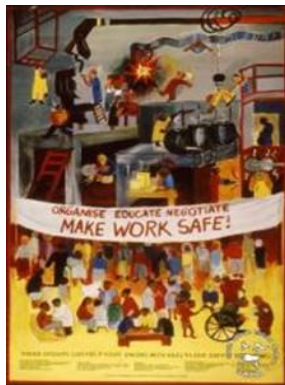

The Occupational Medicine Clinic at Groote Schuur Hospital, is one of the few referral clinics in the country, offering specialist services in the diagnosis and management of occupational disease and hazardous workplace exposures.

UCT Occupational Medicine ECHO programme develops clinical capacity for occupational medicine practitioners and other health professionals in Africa.

Social responsiveness and outreach

Technical policy, programme support, advocacy and training programmes for stakeholders including government department at all levels (Dept. of Health, Dept. of Employment and Labour), trade unions and employers, NGOs (WHO, ILO, FAO, NEPAD, Int SoS), community organisations

What do we do?

- Occupational allergy and asthma – risk factors for prevention
Aquaculture, fishing and seafood processing
- Occupational infections in workplaces and health care settings:
TB, COVID-19
- Occupational lung disease and compensation for mineworkers
Silicosis, TB, Asbestos-related disease
- Workplace mental health
Health care workers

School of Public Health
Departement Openbare Gesondheid
Isikolo Sempilo Yoluntu

UNIVERSITY OF CAPE TOWN
UNIVERSITEIT VAN KAAPSTAD

OCCUPATIONAL MEDICINE DIVISION

Faculty of Health Sciences
University of Cape Town

<https://health.uct.ac.za/school-public-health/divisions/occupational-medicine>

<http://www.publichealth.uct.ac.za>

Contact details:

School of Public Health, Faculty of Health Sciences, University of Cape Town
Room 4,46, Level 4 Falmouth Building,
Anzio Road, Observatory, 7925
Tel: 021-6506818
Email: Lynne.Harper@uct.ac.za
Clinic appt: occmedclinic@uct.ac.za

What is Occupational Medicine?

Occupational Medicine

is that branch of medicine concerned with the study, diagnosis, treatment and prevention of disease and ill-health attributable to work.

Occupational Medicine is a multidisciplinary health sciences specialty, drawing on several clinical disciplines, notably pulmonology, dermatology and musculoskeletal medicine, on the sciences of epidemiology and toxicology, and on an understanding of occupational hygiene, law and ethics as applied to workplaces.

Making work and working life, healthy and safe

Who are we?

The Occupational Medicine Division is a joint division of the School of Public Health and the Department of Medicine of the University of Cape Town

Head of Occupational Medicine Division,
Prof Mohamed Jeebhay

Head of Occupational Medicine Clinic,
A/Prof Shahieda Adams

Dr Itumeleng Ntatamala, senior lecturer and occupational medicine specialist

Dr Roslynn Baatjies,
senior lecturer and occupational hygienist

Lynne Harper,
Division administrator

Tebelo Mokoena - Clinic Administrative Assistant (part-time)

What do we do?

Teaching

- Postgraduate Diploma in Occupational Health (PGDOH)
For medical graduates to acquire competency in occupational health practice in workplaces at primary care level
- MMed - Occupational Medicine
Training medical specialists in the registrable specialty of Occupational Medicine
- MPhil - Occupational Health
Developing research capacity in occupational health for occupational health professionals
- PhD studies in occupational health
- Short-courses (online) in occupational health and safety
- Undergraduate teaching

